MISSISSIPPI.

Address of the Democratic-Conservative Executive State Committee.

HEADQ'S EX'VE COM'TEE, DEMOCRATIC CANSERVATIVE PATTY OF MISSISSIPPI, JACKSON, NOVEMBER 6, 1875.

To the People of Mississippi: The Democratic-Conservative execu-The Democratic-Conservative executive committee congratulates you upon the glorious and decisive victory which you have achieved in the election which has just taken place. Upon the result of that election depended the destines of the State for many years to come. The issues involved were above all considerations of finance, currency, or the elevation of favorities, however deserving, to power; they were no tess than the existence and perpetuation, in tall state, of a government possessing the power of protecting life, liberty and property. Misrale had reached a point at which there must be reform or anarchy, a return to the paths of constitutions is mor the installation of force. Under the circumstances it could but be. constitutions is more the installation of force, finder the circumstances it could but be, that the interest of the canvass should be at the finderst of the excitement great, and the pay at success unbounded. But notwithstanding this the committee have just grounds for congratulating you on the fact that they are able to announce to the world that the election was peaceable and orderly, and that your conservatism and love of order prevailed over all temptation to violence. The piedge of a free people to preserve the peace has been found more efficacious than the repressive hand of power. It now remains for us to be moderate in the hour of triumph and magnanimous to the deleasted, including those whom we may regard as the chief arceitects of ruin. The committee urge this moderation and magnanimity as as the chief arcaitects of ruin. The committee u.ge this moderation and magnanimity as due to the high character of the people of Mississippi, and as a fit it route to the praise of the Giver of all good was hath eajoined them.
We have gained by the election the power and opportualty of reforming the administration of the government; retreaching in excenditures in State and county affairs; reducing the taxes; securing an honest, impartial and able judiciary; enforcing accountability and responsibility on all who hold public trusts;
elevating the character of all officials; redressing the enormous evil of special and local legislation, and of crude and unintelligibie statules, and a consequent shortening of the sessions of the legislature; removing the prejudice of race sgainst race, and providing for the administration of justice fairly and impartially to all; improving the common prejudice of race against race, and providing for the administration of justice fairly and inspartially to all; improving the common school system, so that it may be at the same time more eronomical and less turd-assome to the tax-payers, and yet more efficient; placing Mississippi, by a just and wise policy, in her normal relations with the other States of the Union, and with the Federal government, whereby she may contribute her full share to the common prosperity and glory of the constitution and laws. These results are such as to inspire in the hearts of our people emotions of the most profound gratitude and thankfulness to the Lord o' Hosts, who hath given us the victory. The executive c. mmittee, in obedience to the expressed whiches of many devout and patriotic persons in all parts of the State, as well as their own convictions, here express the hope that the people of this Biate will-unite with the people of the Unioc, in the observance, by appropriate religious ceremonies, of Thanksgiving day, appointed by the President of the United States and the governor of this state, for Thursday, November 25th; and that they will, on that day, return thanks to our Heavenip Father for the many blessings which he has vouchsafed to us, the common with the people of the whole country, during the past, year; and that they will especially offer praise and thanksgiving to Him who rules the destinies of nations, for the deliverance of Mississippi; and invoke his blessings upon our efforts to restore good government, material prosperity, and itselectual and moral advancement to our afflicted common wealth.

WAY: ESBORO TENN, November 12.—They have had an exciting canvass here in pagard to a subscription of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars to the Memphis and Knoxville railroad company. The taxande property of this county is about one mittion five hundred thousand dollars, and the amount is near one-weighth of the present taxable property of the county; but they all know that in five years after this road is built the taxable property of Wayne will be double what it now is. The Wayne furnace which was stopped hat year, is to be again put in operation when this road is put under contract. The furnace property, when the furnace was in operation, was assessed at seventy-five thousand dollars, a loss of sixty-five thousand dollars of taxable property to the county. If the railroad should be built, as it is now certain that it will be, this property will be worth one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, because it will then turn out twice as much from as it ever did before The high prices paid for transporting their from to the Tennessee river was the cause of the furnace cossing to run. The President has spoken again, and in rather more definite terms than he had heretofore ventured to employ in commenting upon his chances for a second re-election.
Since his return from New York he has been overwhelmed with caliers at the White House.
As a general thing these visitors have confined their conversation to compliments and to paying respects, but some of the more zealous have touched upon the question of the go even as far as the subject of the third term.

"Mr. President," said he, "the result of the

The words brought a smile of pleasure to the face of the President, who replied: "We can't tell what will happen."

GUIBORD.

The Corpse of the Well-Cursed Member of the Institute Canadienne Buried at Last.

The Military and Police of Montreal Out in Force-Tre Mob Contents Itself by Hooting-Etc.

MONTREAL, November 16.-Early this morning the chief of police received instructions from the mayor to send a detachment of armed police to the Catholic cemetery to protect the men who were digging the grave of Guibord. He was also instructed to send the remainder of his reserve force to the Protestant cemetery. Forty of the men were armed with breach-loading rifles, the remainder merely carrying their batons. The volunteers turned out on the Champ de Mars in the following order: Victoria rifles, numbering about thirty files; the sixth incochings, twenty five men. Prince of was entitles, two hundred, and fifty; the garrisob, about two hundred, and colonel stevens's battery. At ten o'clock the grave was ready for the coffin. At this time not over twenty spectators were present at the Catholic cemetery, but crowds were collecting from all directions. The police formed a hollow square around the Protestant cemetery vault, and the sexton unlocked the doors, and he and himen entered, followed by the friends of the deceased. After a little delay the coffin containing Guibord's remains was produced, when Mr. Boiseau asked if these was produced, when Mr. Boiseau asked if these were the remains of the late Joseph Guibord, kept by him for six years, and cell-vered up to him again on the second of September, and returned to him for safe keeping on the same. The chie of poince thereupon gave the command to shoulder arms, and the funeral procession start d, which, at that time consisted of a couple of carrisages; the police being the sole gnaridians, as the military were far behind, and never going up to the cemetery at all, the road to the Catholic cemetery was crowded with people of all classes, in cabs, carts, and on foot, while the steam vehicles, which had been going west to meet it, doubled about, braking a sort of lane for the small fineral procession to pass through. Great quiet prevailed. No one showed by look, word, or deed any hostility toward the procession, about five minutes after the Catholic cemetery gates had been taken down the funeral procession entered, a portion of the police or the Institute Candenne the animus of the crowd collected was so unmistakable, and the threats to dig Guibord's bones out of the grave, if occasion offered, so openly expressed, that Mr. Boiseau determined to secure, if possible, a ward of police from the mayor to watch the grave for at least twenty-four hours, thus giving time for the cement to harden into a solid rock. The mayor, judge and consul departed on seeing the burial quietly commenced, and Mr. Boiseau dispatched a special mes eager with a note, asking the mayor to provide protection, as he feared the grave would be opened. The mayor promptly consented to this, and wrote out an order for a sufficient body of police to be sent out as a guard till such time as the filling of the grave required. Guibord was buried at last. A driz zling, cold November rain beat down on the spectators, who witnessed the closing act in a drama commenced six years ago. When all was over, the chief of police for dee up in front of the grave, and the police formed into two divisions and marched off the crowd of about twenty-five or thirty degraded looking loafers who had gathered about the grave. One of them, in mockery, put a dead thistiestalk at the foot of it, which was snatched up by a bystander, at whom thy began to jeer. They attempted nothing further for some time, and looked rather uncomfortable, as the rain, which was then failing, had the effect of dampening their ardor. As the last cap, containing Mr. Boiseau, moved off, they summoned up sufficient resolution to hiss and jeer. The military, after waiting a short distance from the gate of the Catholic cemetery until the burial was completed, advanced down the road to the Champs de Mars, after which orders to disband were given, and each battailon marched to its own armory.
